Have Been Identified. ndon. October 17.-The distressing scenes witnessed at the offices here of the Atlantic Transport Company when the news of the wreck of the steamer Mohegan first became known to those who had friends or relatives on board, were renewed this morning. There were many weeping women present, several with infants in their arms, appealing for news of the missing. Most of them were the wives of members of the crew. Some of them went away, still hoping their husbands had escaped, but the majority gave way to despair.

Some were found miles away in coves.

Many persons undoubtedly were killed

Four are as yet unidentified, including those of two elderly ladies. One appears to be a ter "D" in pearls. This is probably the body of Mrs. Charles Duncan. Nine of the bodies were brought to Falmouth, keverne. The rescued passengers are being sheltered at cottages along the re and the crew at the sailors' at Falmouth. John Hyslop, the New York yachtsman, was one of the saved. Mr. Hyslog said the double railing around the ship's boats impeded the launching.

The Cause a Mystery. The cause of the disaster remains the refoundest mystery. Nobody attempts to explain how the Mohegan got so far north of her true course—from six to seven miles. There was no fog at the ime, while the wind on her port quarters was not sufficient to prevent her answering the heim. It has been suggested that her compass was faulty, but daylight lasted long after Eddystone light was passed. The sailors say that the fact that the served to give the alarm. The masts of the Mohegan, which are above water show that her stern is landward, causing a theory that the navigating officer uddenly turned seaward. The ropes were new and stiff and the blocks would not work. Four or five times as many sailors as should have been necessary struggled to lower each boat. The lockers were hard to open.

The crew, in a chivalrous effort to save the women, made the mistake of undermanning the boats. There were only four saids in one boat, which capsized as soon as it was launched. Messrs. Smith and Bloomingdale say that Captain Griffiths had appeared ill all day.

to be Removed and Improved Camps Established - United States May Assist in Removing the Spaniards.

New York October 17 -A dispatch to the Herald from Havana says: If the President listens to the recommendations of the military commission, only a very small body of troops will reach Havana earlier than December. There are two easons for this. The first is that weather will be much improved by December. The second, and more important reason, is the desire to use no docks, warehouses, hospitals or camps that have been used by the Spanish of Cubans. This is the only way yellow fever can be avoided. The commissioners urge the President to authorize them to build everything new. If this authority is given, orders tor material, that are already written out, will be at once cabled to the United will be here, and not more than thirty days will be required to do all the necessary work.

The point of disembarkation will deend upon the number of men sent here. These troops will camp in the hills southeast of Guanabacoa, where plans are already made to care for at least one division-about 8,000 soldiers. If the President decides he can wait until December 1, the troops will

The impression is growing in the minds of the American commissioners that Spain expects the United States will ultimately assist in sending the Spanish troops back to the peninsula. It may be that the present vexatious delays are caused for the purpose of tiring American patience until McKinley will be glad to send ships in order to expedite matters. At any rate the Spanish commissioners never lose an opportunity to dwell upor American wealth and Spanish poverty. At the last joint session this was brough cut by Parrado, who said that Spain should be allowed to take away all the big guns protecting Havana, because the United States could replace them without feeling the cost. At last Sunday's breakfast Spain's lack of funds was alluded to time and again by the Spanish commissioners, who would roll their eyes and say:

"The United States must remember that we are in a bad condition. The poor reconcentrado can not be expected to travel with the speed of an American in

Finally, at Thursday's informal con ference, the subject was openly discussed. Parrado said that Spain had sent agents into all European countries to engage transports. Their lack of succondition, he said, could not be improved upon till the country had enjoyed a few years of peace. Parrado further said:
"We will do our best to get the soldiers out of Cuba immediately, but if our movements are too slow, you wil ington, and it is quite probable some ar rangement has been made to lend as-sistance, either without pay or by taking

Addresses at Plymouth Church on Questions of Crime and the Proper Treatment of It-General Meeting.

The National Prison Association is holding its twenty-seventh annual congress in Plymouth church. A preliminary neeting was held Saturday night. John H. Holliday presided, and brief speeches of welcome were made by Governor Mount and Mayor Taggart, after prayer by the Rev. A. J. Graham. The response was by Frederick H. Wines, secretary of the State Board of Charities of Illinois, who feelingly referred to loss sustained by reform work in the death of Oscar C. McCulloch.

Z. R. Brockway, of the Elmira (N. Y.) Reformatory, president of the associa-tion, delivered the annual address. He declared that the reformation of prisoners must be the reformation of their habits; to create within them new and improved habits of bodily behavior, betmoral propensities. This, he said, is the reformation which is of practical value for the prevention of crime, and this refrmation contributes to public security. He expressed the opinion that whatever may be the truth about the effect of the death penalty (whether to deter or incite pect that as against common crimes minated by the penitentiary pun-

The speaker said that we are in our infancy in Indiana in reformatory work, but that the instand on its feet, and has taken a few decided steps in the right direction. He insisted that many a man's progress in right living is in proportion to his fel-low-men's belief in him. "To be believed in is a large factor in human redemption. How frequently it goes a long way toward making a man faithful to let him know that you believe he will be so. SOLDIERS IN THE RAIN

ARRIVAL OF THE 158TH MEN AT CAMP MOUNT.

A Dreary Day - Providing Against Cold and Dampness in the Barns -Gas Cut Off for a While--The Hospital.

Col. Harry B. Smith's "rain-makers," the One-hundred-and-fifty-eighth Regiment, went into camp at the State Fair grounds to-day. The regiment was furloughed thirty days ago, and it has returned to Camp Mount to be mustered out of military service. The Fair grounds were cold and desolate when Capt. D. F. Allen's "early birds," of Frankfort, arrived there. The company was the first one to respond to the call for troops last spring, and it was the first to report this morning. It was followed by Company I, of Sheridan, in command of Captain Cox. Nearly all of the regimental officers reported to the mustering officer. Adjutant Powell was wading about in the mud and water along the main drive at 8 o'clock. Colonel Smith drove out for a short time. He has been threatened with typhoid fever, and remained at Camp Mount only long enough to turn the command of the regiment over to Lieutenant-Colonel Thayer, who came from Greenfield on an early train. Milt Hopkins, the regimental quartermaster, who has had a serious time with typhoid fever, was riding about the camp in a

While the volunteers hovered about the cold buildings like flocks of sheep, the regimental officers skirmished for places in which to establish the men. Regimental headquarters were located in a corner of the fine-arts building. Five barns were opened to the companies, but Visiting Women's Prison.

Over one hundred delegates to the prison congress visited the Indiana Reform School for Girls and Woman's Prison to the Companies, but they did not afford enough shelter for all the men. One of the large buildings in which the men were quartered last spring has been filled with tentage, and the "Indianapolis regiment" could not get into it. A large quantity of straw was ordered, which was scattered over chapel exercises. The speakers were the the floors of the barns, and in the course Rev. D. R. Imbric, of Allegany, Pa.; the of the day places were found for all to It is thought that about forty men in the regiment are too sick to come to Camp Mount. Surgeon Barcus was taken ill of typhoid fever at Sidney, O., last Tuesday, and was sent to his home in Crawfordsville, where he is now con-

him to return home out of the rain. Be-fore noon most of the regiment had re-

He says the business affairs have made progress toward settlement with the Government since the regiment was furloughed, and the work, which will require the longest time will be that of examining the physical condition of the men. The examinations will begin tomorrow morning. Until to-morrow the regiment will have army rations for fare regiment will have army rations for fare.
There was a quantity of provisions left on hand thirty days ago, and these will be consumed before the companies are served with meals by contract.

Gas Shut Off for a While The work of the mustering officers was brought to a standstill for a time this morning. Lieutenant May, the mustering officer, sat at his desk in the fine arts building, wrapped in a mili-tary overcoat. The examining surgeons who are inquiring into the health of Col. with the work as the gas in the stoves had been shut off so that some changes could be made in the lines. In the course of the day three pay-masters, Major Cleiand, Major May and Major Gillam, reached the camp. They are here to make financial settlement with the "Tigers" as soon as all reports are completed.

There were thirty-two men in the State Hospital this morning, and preparations had been made to receive any sick who might come in with the One-hundred-and-fifty-eighth Regiment. The weather prevented the discharge of any patients, but some will be sent home to-morrow The hospital building was warm an comfortable, the beds looked white and clean, and the patients said they were fering well. The officers of the hospital say they are in need of jellies, which generous people of the city are invited to give. The sick men find the jellies appetizing. There was a supply up to a few days ago.

THE 159TH FURLOUGH EXTENDED. Lengthened Thirty Days to Prevent Crowding Camp Mount

Col. John T. Barnett, of the One-hungraphed the captains in his command that they need not report to Camp Mount with their companies until No-vember 17. The action was taken after the colonel had received from Washinga furlough of thirty days more for the regiment. The extension of time was made so that too many men would not be concentrated at Camp Mount at once was thought, too, that while the work of mustering out the command was in progress it would be necessary to stop until the men could go to their homes to vote. Colonel Barnett says the business accounts of his regiment are in such shape that he can make settlement with the Government in two days, but there is other work which will keep the regiment in camp for two weeks after it comes to Indianapolis. Colonel Barnett says the health of the men is good. There are only three or four cases of sickness, as far as he knows. Seventy men of Com pany C have prepared a petition, asking the Government to transfer them to some Indiana regiment to be continued

Roy Olcott's Army Experience. Roy Olcott, whose parents have been eeking him through various sources for more than a month, arrived at his home, 1624 East Tenth street, Saturday night. He is the son of Charles Olcott, and enlisted in the regular army last spring going to Cuba with the Seventh Artillery Young Olcott is seventeen years old. He returned home thin-limbed and with his face showing a yellowish color, which signifies the presence of typhoid and masignifies the presence of typhoid and ma-larial fevers in his blood. To his friends to-day he was recalling trying experi-ences which he has undergone since leaving Indianapolis. He says that the men in service in Cuba could nave with stood their hardships had they received more food. He says that the battery to which he belonged was on short rations for a considerable time, while he knows the commissary officers had large stocks or provisions five miles from them, which were disposed of to natives, instead of being distributed among the soldiers. He was on one of the transports which left

The Star Store's Two Great Sales

Our buyer bought out the entire stock of G. H. Bloomfield & Co., of New York. They carried one of the best and largest stocks of China and Housefurnishing goods in the East. We have also bought out the entire stock of Woolen Blankets from one of Indiana's best Blanket manufacturers. Both sales began this morning with a vim that has caused a sensation in Indianapolis. Never before were such magnificent values offered in this city. Of the values on sale we can only mention here a few. The sale continues all week. Each day new specials are added as these lots may be closed out.

Ponce, and had to put back to Santiago on account of fire breaking ut in the coal bunkers. He says that for a time there was danger of the fires reaching the ammunition which the boat carried, and few of the men expected to reach land again. He was landed from the transport at New York, and spent two Jays there before coming to Indianapolis. He is now in a doctor's care.

Easy Going Sunday in Camp. Sunday at Camp Mount was marked by religious services at the grand-stand in morning, and by baseball and foot-games in the afternoon. The work of the regiment was dispensed with during the day, and there seemed to be little or no military discipline in force. Soldiers strayed out of camp at will, and they found doors to neighboring road-house opened to them. The bright weather induced numerous visitors to go to the camp. Several young women who went say they had unpleasant experiences. They were forced to run gauntlets of soldiers who "guyed" them, while the sol-diers say they were only having a "bit of camp fun,"

THE ALPHA HOME. Unauthorized Plens for Help Not Wanted.

To the Editor of The Indianapolis News There has recently appeared in the city papers certain statements concerning the Alpha Home for Aged Colored Women which are so misleading that we consider it necessary to inform the public of the real condition of that institution.

The Alpha Home was established for aged colored women in 1881. The house and grounds were donated by Mrs. Pauline Merritt. Since the original gift the ladies who compose the association have added improvements to the home to the value of $800, all of which has been paid. The citizens have generously con-tributed toward the furnishing of the brone. The Launfal Circle of Kings home. The Launfal Circle of Kings home. The Launfal Circle of Kings Daughters has furnished the reception-room. An entertainment was recently given by Mrs. A. H. Henderson, a member of the association, which netted a sufficient sum to furnish all the fiannel the inmates can use. While there are some needs of repairs to the building, there is certainly no danger of any suffering whatever. The offer of Mrs. S. A. Coleman, of 1024 Senate avenue, to entirely without authoraty. She is not a member of the association, and has never been authorized to hold entertainments nor solicit for the home. From her recent entertainment, in the

From her recent entertainment, in the name of the home, she has reported to us the sum of $4.

The only solicitors for the Alpha Home are the officers elected by the association, and their soliciting books are signed by the president and secretary, and contain the impress of the seal of the Alpha Home Association. The officers are elected in March.

Persons wishing to make voluntary donations, may leave the same with Mrs. G. L. Knox, 220 West Vermont street. We will keep open house the day preceding Thanksgiving at the barber shop of Mr. G. L. Knox, and will be pleased to see our many friends, as usual.

We thank the public for their past generosity, only desiring that all donations come through the proper source. Persons wishing to give entertainments for the home, can secure authority by applying to the officers of the association—Mrs. H. A. Webb, president, $12 East Wyoming street; Mrs. Nellie Allen, vice-president, 792 West Walnut street; Mrs. Amanda Wells, secretary 528 Agnes street.

What the "Father of the County Chairman" Really Did Say. the Editor of The Indianapolis News:

I see in Mr. Bailey's speech, reported in The News of the 12th, from Edinburg. me items I wish to notice concerning rself, the father of the Republic airman, as follows: "Why, I had—a "Why, I had-and I propose to take the liberty to say—the father of the county chairman, the Republican chairman of this county, said at my meeting at Whiteland, that he was favor of the bill after it was disssed; that he was not in favor of the solute single gold standard, and he said that Mr. Overstreet, when he understands the bill, won't be in favor of it, either." Now for what I did say: A gentleman rom Franklin, and candidate of the democratic ticket, standing near, asked Democratic ticket, standing near, asked me: "Is he making a good speech?" I said yes: he is making a good speech to be fighting straw. There is nothing in it. As I understand it, Mr. Overstreet, at the request of the monetary committee, introduced into Congress the monetary bill, was referred to the committee, reported back to the House, and that was the last of it. But if Congress should past it, and it is as bad as he makes it out to be, the President could (or would) veto it." Here the talk all ended.

Now for what I did not say: I never 'said I was not in favor of this bill after it was discussed." never said that I "was not in favor the absolute single gold standard."

of the absolute single gold standard."
I never "said that Mr. Overstreet, when he understands the bill, won't be in favor of it, ether"; that the cheap-money "mossbacks" laughed at Mr. Overstreet, and would not thank me to form conclusions for him in this or any other questions in this campaign. I feel that he is competent to look after these matters himself

A TIMELY PLEA.

The negroes in the United States could hardly ask for a nobler advocate than Booker T. Washington, or for a more dignified and affecting plea for fair treatment than that made by him at the great national peace jubilee held in go last night. Before a distinrulshed audience, an audience in which the President of the United States was the central figure, Mr. Washington, as the representative of a race which many men have been taught to believe was naturally and necessarily inferior, made what is easily the best speech delivered on that occasion. He showed that, throughout our history, the negro had invariably chosen, in every great crisis, "the better part." While still a slave, I gone never to return. he had fought for American freedom in the great struggle with Great Britain and the first blood shed in Boston for American independence was that of a negro. Not preferring liberty to life, he had so conducted himself, as finally, after much suffering, to secure both liberty and life. During the days of the great civil struggle, a struggle the real object of which was to emancipate the black race, the negro had yet remained faithful to his obligations to his master, and amid all the horror and demoralization of civil strife, when it would have been easy for him to make reprisals on those from whose injustice he had suffered, the negro deliberately sacrificed himself to his sense of duty, and faithfully served and protected those who had been committed to his care. Speaking on this subject, Mr. Washington said:

He knew that victory on the one hand meant freedom, and defeat, on the other, his continued ensiavement. With a full knowledge of the portentous meaning of it all, when the suggestion and the temptation came to burn the home and massacre wife and children during the absence of the master in battle and thus sence of the liberty, we find him choosing the liberty. his liberty, we find him choosing ther part and for four long years No one knows this better than the Southern people, and the debt is freely and touchingly acknowledged in the literature of the new South. But it has en poorly paid.

It is not necessary to go over the story of the services of the negro during the mines and at the railroad stations near civil war after the Government adopted the mines to prevent "imported" laborers the policy of enlisting them as soldiers. or during the Spanish war just closed. When he had a chance to fight for freedom without betraying the trust reposed in him, he hastened to improve it, and his heroism in battle was abundantly proved. In the Santiago campaign the negro did his duty modestly and bravely, against him, it is said that steps will be as Shafter, Roosevelt and Wheeler, to whom Mr. Washington appeals as witnesses, will testify. We call especial attention to the following statement:

In the midst of all the complaints of suffering in the camp and field, suffering from fever and hunger, where is the offi-cial or citizen that has heard a word of complaint from the lips of a black sol-The only request that has come the negro soldier has been that he might be permitted to replace the white soldier when heat and malaria began to decimate the ranks of the white regi-ment, and to occupy at the same time the post of greatest danger.

It is well that these undoubted facts should be emphasized, for they form the basis for the plea made by Mr. Washington. After showing how courageously the negro has done his duty, even at great cost to himself, he points to one other victory that the American people must win, if they are to avoid serious danger. That victory, which must be one over ourselves, resulting in "the blotting out of racial prejudices," is yet to be gained. Mr. Washington sald:

We can celebrate the era of peace in no more effectual way than by a firm resolve on the part of Northern men and Southern men, black and white men, that the trenches which we together dug around Santiago shall be the eternal huntal place of all that which accounted.

The only possible precedent in favor burial place of all that which separates us in our business and civil relations. Let us be as generous in peace as we have quer ourselves, I make no empty statewhen I say that we shall have, especially in the Southern part of our country, a cancer gnawing at the heart of this olic that shall one day prove as dangerous as an attack from an army from

This is not the language of a sentimentalist. Mr. Washington is a practical man, and he has shown on many occasions that he appreciates to the full culties in the way of a settlement of the great race problem. He has never sought to inflame his people against their oppressors, or to lead them to expect the impossible. Never a preacher of social equality, he has, on the contrary, told his people that if they ever expected it would have to show themselves worthy of it. No man has talked to them more plainly about their duties, and certainly none has done more in a practical way to help them. So he has · earned the right to remind the white people of their duties to the negro, and of their indebtedness to him.

We say, and say truly, of the Spanish war, that it has broken down the section al lines between the different parts of the nation, as well as those more dangerous ones that divide our people into ses, and that it has brought the United States and Great Britain into the me to feel that this result may ow. For he speaks of the recognition that the negre has received from Prest- We should have no more cause to object dent McKinley as one "that has done to a British conquest of Liberia than to nore to blot out sectional and racial lines than any event since the dawn of our freedom." We are sure that Mr. Washington would agree with the view that the future of the black man depends at least as much on himself as it does on the white man. And it is fortunate for the country that it has one citizen who is entitled to speak to both races, and who is able to do it as wisely and courageously as Mr. Booker T. Washington.

WORD ABOUT INTRINSIC VALUE Speaking of the "intrinsic value" of coins, the Sentinel declares:

Let the Government do as it did from 1793 to 1873 - place the two metals on precisely the same footing - and the anvil or melting-pot test will show same results as to each. All which is perfectly true, as The coinage silver coins, like gold coins, would pass for just what they are actually worth in the markets of the world. They would stand the anvil or the melting-pot test as well as gold coins now stand either. That is the case now in Mexico and in every other country where free coinage of silver is in vogue. A Mexican silver dollar is worth 47 cents to-day - just what the bullion in it is worth. It weighs more than our dollar, but under free coinage it must stand the anvil or the melting-pot test it must be worth as much as a shapeless mass as it is when shaped and stamped. So it would be in this country if free coinage obtained. The silver dollar would be worth and would pass for just as much as the bullion in it were worth, whatever that might be. But no one with even rudimentary knowledge of financial questions seriously believes that opening the mints of the United States to the free coinage of silver would restore the ancient ratio of 16 to 1 between gold and silver. Like the still more ancient ratios of 10 to 1 and 14 to 1, there is every indication that it has

BOWING TO THE STORM. The storm of popular indignation at Governor Tanner's course in the mining troubles seems to have had some effect. So far not a single apologist has been found for Governor Tanner. The press of many States, irrespectively of party, has united in condemning him, and he has also heard a sharp word of warning and rebuke from the heads of the Republican party. Both State and national party leaders have taken alarm. The storm has proved too much for him, and, bowing to it, he has retreated from the position he at first assumed of attempting to control and direct the running of railroad trains and of electing certain passengers from the trains. By his express orders the State militia was employed in searching trains and expelling negro passengers,on the presumption that they were "imported" laborers. He has found that this action is without the least warrant and has been forced to change his tactics. Governor Tanner has by his retreat from one false position relieved himself from the immediate hostility of the railroad companies, but he has not yet relieved himself from the liability of iminvading the common rights of citizens. He still abides by his first position fusing to allow the Virden mines to be worked with laborers from other States. His guards are still placed at the coal from having a chance to work. It is not only public indignation and the condem nation of the press that Governor Tanner has to fear, for steps are being taken to bring before the courts the question of his right to intervene between employers and employed. If the courts decide taken at once looking to his impeach-

AN EXTENSION OF IMPERIALISM. It is reported that Bishop Hartzell, a representative of the Methodist Episcopal church in Africa, is commissioned by the republic of Liberia to ask the United States to establish a protectorate over that country. In the scramble among the various European powers for territory in Africa it is feared that the negro republic may be wiped out, and so it is natural that it should turn to this country, which is supposed to have no selfish interest in that quarter of the world, to save it from threatened extinc-Yet Bishop Hartzell proposes that the United States shall protect Liberia by seizing it as American territory. He thinks we should say to the powers of Europe, "we have an interest in Liberia; this country belongs to us." The trouble about this plan is that, though we have an undoubted interest in Liberia, as we have in many other regions, the country

The only possible precedent in favor of such action is our intervention in Cuba. The cases of Porto Rico and the Philippines are not in point. We became involved in the affairs of those islands through our war with Spain, a war that was undertaken for other purposes than territorial aggrandizement. We conquered Ports Rico, and Dewey's victory in Manila harbor brought with it the Philippine problem. If it had not been for the Cuban insurrection, there would have been no territorial acquisition, except possibly Hawaii,

As for the Cuban situation, it does not in any way resemble that in Liberia. The island is almost a part of our coast line. Our Cuban trade is considerable. and there are large American interests in Cuba. For years civil war has raged in the island, and there was not the slightest prospect that there could be peace and prosperity under Spanish rule. We could not stand by and see the Cubans oppressed, and their country ruined by a power which had shown such an entire incapacity to govern it. So we interfered to stop the war, and to give the people of Cuba a chance to govern themselves. We could not allow any other power to selze or acquire Cuba because our policy forbade such a thire Yet this is the only precedent to which the Liberians can appeal. It is not in point. Their country is in another hemisphere. As far as we know the peomost friendly relations. We wish that ple are not suffering - if they are, it is it might have the further effect of blot- at the hands of a government of their ing out race antagonism. Mr. Washing- own choice. a British conquest of Egypt. or a French conquest of Madagascar. We do not imagine that Bishop Hartzell will mee with much encouragement from the administration. Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines present problems enough to keep us employed for some time to come.

THE TRUCE OF THE BEAR. Mr. W. E. Henley was right in calling Rudyard Kipling "the great living laureate of imperialism." No poem of Mr. Kipling's won for him such universal commendation as "The Recessional" - by all odds the most striking scietic utterance called forth by the Queen's Jubiles Bearing "The Recessional" in mind, one is struck by the entirely different tone pervading his latest "imperialistic" utterance, "The Truce of the Bear," which News has always contended. With free we printed Saturday. He who runs may read in this later poem the bitter sneer

which Mr. Kipling has for the Czar's proposal of disarmament. The whole purpose of the fable of "Matun, the old blind beggar," the warning beheath the allegory, is that Great Britain must put no faith in the Czar's sincerity. This is not altogether for long before "The Recessional" he had written that powerful story, "The Man Who Was." designed to show that the Russian does not mix well with Western civilization, "Let it be understood," he says there, "that the Russian is a delightful person till he tucks in his shirt." Living in northern India, and imbued with the hopes and fears of the British officials in northern India, there was always present to Mr. Kipling's mind, the danger of a Russian descent into India through the Khyber Pass, Not that Mr Kipling, or the North India of-

The fear of Mr. Kipling is not the fear of meeting the Russian Bear in a fair field and an honest fight, for he believes that the "God of Battles" fights with the British in an honest cause: else he could not pray:

Lord of our far-fung battle-line— Beneath Whose awful Hand we hold Dominion over paim and pine— Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet, Lest we forget—lest we forget! He affects to see in the Czar's disarmament proposal only the cunning of treachery, and he believes that:

With Russia boldly opposing Great Britain in the march on China, constructing military railways and seeking open ports for her navy on the one hand, and peachment for violation of the law in on the other hand calling the world to universal peace, there might already seem to be some justification for Mr. Kipling's warning. At any rate, we have no doubt that Mr. Kipling's poem will have a very marked effect on popular opinion in England, and this in turn will make itself felt on the statesmen, and perhaps on the policy of Great Britain. The Democrats in New York want to limit the campaign to State issues, but the Republicans are in favor of ex-

From all the stories that are not being circulated about Schley, Shafter and others, it is evident that a here is not permitted to keep his hale very long. Everything goes to show that there has long been the greatest looseness in the management of the county's affairs. Men have gone into the county offices to make all they could out of them, even by peddling marriage certificates, or charging ten prices for preparing indexes - work which, by any fair understanding, if required at all, should be made by the regular clerks of the department in their regular time. The facts recently published show that under the fee and salary law abuses of long standing, which it was expected the fee and salary law would put a stop to, are continued and allowances are continually made by the county commissioners in excess of the practiced under previous administrations does not relieve the present officers of criticism. Men are responsible for their obliged to do wrong because their predeauditor is under no compulsion to milk the county because a Democratic auditor had set a bad example. Grant all that the Journal says about Mr. Taggart's administration of the auditor's office and it has always been understood that he was "working it for all there was in it" - that does not excuse the present auditor for any abuses that he has allowed to continue or any excessive bills he has got the county to pay. Every sound money voter should bear in mind that Mr. Overstreet stands for the gold standard and monetary reform, and Mr. Bailey for free coinage at 16 to 1. which means the silver standard.

Before the annexation of Hawaii it was freely predicted that the Hawaiian sugar planters would endeavor, after annexation, to perpetuate their un-American system of coolie labor. Events seem to have justified this prediction. On September 8 a memorial was presented to the American commissioners by the Hawaijan Sugar Planters' Association, discussing the future government of the This association represents nearly all the wealth of the islands. The memorial shows that the sugar planters have slight hope that a white farming population from America will be attract ed to Hawaii; laborers will not come hence it is necessary to continue in force the old system of coolie labor in order to maintain the chief industry of the islands sugar planting. Says the memorial: It is open to question whether any conber of American siderable number of American laborers will be content to accept the wages which the Hawaiian agricultural interests can afford to pay, even though under the present special tariff conditions the sugar industry may be able to pay a somewhat higher rate of wages than heretofore paid. Meanwhile the necessities of the industries of the country are immediate and pressing. We estimate that during the twelve months next ensuing during the twelve months next ensuing the date hereof the agricultural indus-

According to this, the first fruits of our annexation of Hawaii are the de mand of the sugar planters for special privileges for their industry; they want exemption from the contract labor laws if the United States and desire to continue in force a coolle system, which considered in its most favorable aspects, is but a trifle removed from slavery.

A remarkable tribute to the benefits of the eight-hour law for workingmen is shipbuilders on the Wear, in Sunderland England. They have been trying the eight-hour plan in their works for the last seven years, and have just issued s report, in which they declare the experi ment has proved very satisfactory. They profess themselves convinced that the eight-hour plan the men do not lose so much time, but really work more hours than they did under the old system. The firm has found that instead of the production being less from shorter hours of work, it has, on the contrary, steadily increased since The firm took up the system in the belief that they could get the same amount of work from their men by a better method. They report that of the men working on time wages 15 or 20 per cent. lost the first quarter of the day. while the men working on piece work scarcely ever started to work until 8:30 Under the old system the men started at 6 o'clock, stopped at 8 for half an hour for breakfast, had another interval of an hour at noon and the day's work was finished at 5. The conditions were such that many men were physically incapable of enduring the long hours. It was, under the old system, common for a man receiving 24 shillings a week to lose as much as three-quarters of a day a week, simply because he was unable to rise at 6 every morning and work full time. From 15 to 20 per cent. of the men never started work till after the first quarter of the day had been lost. Under the new system the men start at 7:30 and work with only one break until 5 o'clock, and they are able to do more work and at the same time more is got out of the y hour now may bring the fever i Paris to the stage of delirium; and with such a patient as this, no wise man can risk prophecy. The Fashoda fury is at times quiescent, but it may break out again at any moment, at a sign from some angry general, who finds it will pay him to start the cry "a Londres," and set the streets ringing with it, as they did with "a Berlin" years ago. The material for a great military coup d'efat is ready to the hand of such a man, but as yet no general cares to fire the charge himself.

It is noticed as an ominous sign that officials ill-disposed to the present gov-ernment have been summoned to Paris to take the places of those known to be loyal Republicans, who have been given distant jobs in not easily accessible prov-inces. As a counter blast, the Minister of the Interior has been summoning police officials from all parts of France on the workmen's strikes. The result is that these two packs of dogs are being held in leash by hostile masters, with this difference, that until martial law is actually declared the civil dog is entitled to the first bite.

Another curious circumstance is that all the plots with which Boisdeffre od Zurlinden are credited to get rid of the Ministry, there seems to have been no question of displacing the President. It is a significant assumption that Faure would take the sacrifice of any or all the ministers quite as a matter of course, provided only he be allowed to hold the dummy office of decorative President which he now clings to so desperately.

There is hardly any precedent for the Incre is nardly any precedent for the publication of documents of such deadly importance as the Fushoda papers before the question they deal with has been decided, or at least advanced one definite stage. Sir Charles Dilke, who is rightly credited with being one of the best informed men on English foreign politics, pointed out to me, in the course of a conversation this week, the skill with which Salisbury has fast ones door for which Salisbury has kept open door for France, the key to which is to be found in the last few sentences of the papers. in the last few sentences of the papers. Salisbury bars as Egyptian property, the title to which may not be discussed, all territory lately under the rule of the Khalifa; and this, at first sight, seems to exclude not only Fushoda, but the whole fertile district of Bahrelghazal from the negotiations. Practically, however, these may well be on the western side of the Ghazal lands, which never came under the Khalifa's rule, and which may therefore, be played for in pro-

[London Cable New York Tribune.] The unexpected rise in the bank rate ators as due to the strained relations beween England and France, and the directors have been credited with patriotism in an accentuation of Rosebery's warning. This is purely fanciful. real causes for the advance in the rate were the financial pressure from Berlin and a dread of the renewal of gold exports to America.

The Berlin market is stringent, and there is a great demand for money. The reserve of the Bank of England is low, and the directors have given warning that they can not lend large sums to Ber lin, especially when America holds a call for it at any moment. The directors have taken measures to prevent the withdrawal of gold from the bank for Germany on paper placed here, and tem porarily have made the export of gold to merica unprofitable. financiers perceive is the significance of the steady increase in the English debt to America, and to the resources of power with which it arms Secretary Gage in with which it arms Secretary Gage in dealing with the currency question.

The conditions, they assert, are now most favorable for accumulating a great gold reserve in Washington, since New York only needs to present bills against England and the continent to get it. There will never be, in the opinion of the experts here, a better opportunity for establishing a single gold standard in America. This result may be retarded, they admit, by Republican defeat in November.

One thing is fairly certain: a gold standard will be introduced in India within a few years. Lord George Hamilton, Mr. Balfour, and other bimetallists here are confident there is now no alternative course, and that Indian mints can not be re-opened to silver. The rationa inference is that the American currency reform can be brought about more easily before than after the gold standard is established in India. Municipal Ownership.

[London Cable Chicago Tribune.] The County Council has decided urchase and operate the London tramway system, a portion of which has already been taken over. The Council, by the opening of the new year, will be in full possession of the South London ramways, and expects to make an annual profit of $200,000, after providing for the interest and sinking fund. This margin of profit may not be se cured, since the working hours of the tramway operatives will be reduced under the municipal management.

The County Council has also asked the postoffice department whether it intends to act upon the recent report of the Ham bury committee, and establish a competing telephone service. The department is known to favor a municipal telephone service, and will probably return a negative answer. The Council will then be at liberty to go into the telephone business, and provide for London a competing service. The existing service is expensive and inadequate. There is a good field for a competing business at re-

Tame Deer Are Dangerous.

Tame Deer Are Dangerous.
[London Spectator.]

The tameness of the deer in the Duke of Bedford's grounds is very remarkable. Except the acclimatized Japanese from Powerscourt, and elsewhere, they are wild creatures, caught in distant islands and continents, from the Moluccas and Formosa to the Atal mountains, or the swamps of Canada. Yet the difficulty is to Neep them wild enough. It is always dangerous to allow stags to become tame and fantiliar. If they lose their fear of man they are liable to become dangerous at certain seasons and attack persons in a park or keepers as savagely as they do their own kind. Consequently, all familiarity has to be discouraged at other seasons, when the deer are most anxious to be friendly. With the hinds this is not necessary, and their confidence is very pretty and engaging.

The nomination for delegates to the district convention in this county was sld by primary election, and Cromer got a a resolution that only candidates living other counties. Another resolution was ticket, the object being to show that he was popular in his own county. Some of the committeemen refused to do this, and returned the actual Cromer vote, showing that he had run behind some other candidates materially. It is said that he was aided in this scheme by the Democrats, Vernon Davis, the Democratic district chairman, is the smartest politician in Delaware county, barring none. He told me a month before the primary election what would occur, and his prediction came true to the letter. He said then that he proposed to help Cromer get the nomination for Congress, and now he says that he was largely instrumental in bringing it about.

The Opposition Takes Form A short time before the convention met circular was issued by the opponents of Mr. Cromer and freely distributed throughout the district, reciting the

He is not the kind of a man who should be sent to Congress. I have always been a Republican, and I cast my first Republican vote for John C. I will wash my hands of the congressional ticket entirely. I can not vote for a man who is allled to the saloon ele-ment; who was friendly to that element when he was mayor, and about whom stories of immorality are told: We have laws made by Republicans that we think are preity good laws. I mean the Moore and Nicholson laws, and Cromer, as ther matters concerning him, into which do not care to go, but the people of funcie know all about them. In indors Muncle know all about them. In indorsing George Cromer it is simply saying to the boys in school, if you want to prepare yourself for anything in life, you must pay no attention to churches or morality, but take up with the saloon element and the element that is immoral. The candidates were Cromer, of Delaware; Stillwell, of Madison; Marsh, of Randolph, and Sharpe, of Wells. Once during the convention Cromer was about to withdraw, but was persuaded to remain in the contest, and on the seventy-ninth ballot he was nominated. This took place in May, and since that time the anti-Cromer Republicans and the Democrats have been laying plans to defeat him. The first movement was to array the moral element of the district against him, and this succeeded beyond expectation, for, as stated before, an almost united clergy is opposing him.

IMPORTANCE OF THE GUNBOATS IN THE BATTLE.

Use of Lyddite Shell Proves Efficacious-A Trip Up the Nile-The Futile Pursuit of the [Special Correspondence-Copyrighted.] Omdurman. September 12.-The gunboats during the advance on and taking of Omdurman played a most conspicuous and important role.

There is now no doubt that their action on August 31 was the cause of the Khalifa's changing his plans; as instead of meeting us at Omdurman he fearing a repetition of the terrible havoc made by the gunboats and Major Elmslie's lyddite howitzers the previous day, resolved to attack us in the good old Dervish fashion, trusting to the fanaticism of his follow ers to drive us into the Nile.

As we gradually approached Omduram on the last day of August many of us saw puffs of smoke floating away heavenward on the southern horizon

There was no sound to denote firing for the wind was blowing from the north, but to those who were behind the scenes that smoke told that the curtain great Soudan tragedy, which had thrilled the civilized world for so many years past. Keppel, with the Sheikh, Sultan, Nassah, and Melik, had steamed south at 6:30 a. m., and at 10 o'clock the little squadron hove to close in shore, as usual, o mark our camping ground and to be come our rallying point. At midda Keppel received orders to make a reconnaisance with his ships as far south as Halffyeh, but not to engage the enemy unless pressed by them. On passing the Kerriri bridge the boats espied on the orthern slope, about three thousand yards inland, a large encampment of Dervishes. The Dervishes were seemingly so happy and confident in being safe estation 3,000 yards inland that Keppel was obliged to disabuse them regarding the safety of their position and the range of modern guns. He immedithe range of modern guns. He immediately opened fire with his twelve-pounders, using connagration shell, which swept the Dervish tents in flaring masses to the leeward, and the fanatics, mad hind them a large number of dead. This was the first brush with the enemy of a erious nature. The steamers, warming to their work, shelled three villages of Baggara horse watering down by the river, and taking five prisoners. On steaming opposite to Halfiyeh the first fort south of Shabluka appeared in sight, and then Omduram, with its five niles of river frontage, its frowning mud walls, and numerous forts, flashed into view. The morning sun was strong upon a building whose dazzling whiteness its conical end turned toward the sky, and the other burled in a bank of mud. Tris, then was the famous city of blood, torture, and slavery; a city of brown mud, and the Mahdi's temb a dome of The Coveted Goal.

The Sultan was the first boat to sight

Halfiyeh. On arriving north of the place to be ready to start at 8 o'clock. We had all the gunboats opened fire on a strong fort with deep embrasures, outside the town. In a few minutes the fort was silenced and the garrison killed. The boats then covered the advance of Major Wortley and Lieutenant Wood, at the head of their Jaalin, on to the town. A smart little fight ensued before the place was captured, Wortley's force losing twenty men killed and wounded. The gunboats, heading for Tuti island, arrived opposite on the east bank, and the Thirty-seventh Field Battery of howtzers, under Major Elmslie, at a point on the mainland north of the island, with 175 men, details from nearly every British regiment as escorts, and at Once got his battery into fighting trim. Meanwhile, the gunboats turned their at-tention to a large fort on Tuti island, which they immediately destroyed, and then steamed in line past the Omdurman forts, nine in number. Each fort was aken separately, the boats' fire being concentrated on the embrasures, shell after shell passing through the openings into the fort with unerring regularity,

The Mahdi's Tomb. While the ships were busily engaged tackling the forts. Elmslie's lyddite guns opened on the city, the third shell passing through the cupola, and wrecking the The lyddite shell, with delay fuses, now worked admirably, and the citadel wall was soon rent, as if an earthquake had saused it to yawn into gaps, through which a team of exen could be driven On entering some of the forts after the fight, so mangled were the remains of the plucky defenders that it was diffi-cult for the moment to distinguish whether the scattered remnants were of which the beatered reinfalts were of human flesh or that of a shambles. When all the Omdurman works were silenced, Keppel's squadron steamed across the Blue Nile to Khartoum, and attacked the Dervish fort on the spit of land which divides the Blue from the White river. Here, completely isolated, the Darvishes were compelled to best a basic which divides the Blue from the write river. Here, completely isolated, the Dervishes were compelled to beat a hasty retreat inland, and shortly after the capture of this fort, the bombardment was virtually over. The shooting by all the gluboats was remarkably accurate, the quick firers being served mostly by Royal marine artillerymen. Five or six shots about 400 yards range, so bullets from the shore were humming and whistling round the ships all the morning. Arriving off the Anglo-Egyptian camp at sunset at Kerriri, Keppel was ordered to keep his boats close inshore, to guard

Released by the Sirdar. The women and children huddled up on he strand under the protection of the Melik's guns-for shots still echoed from the walls of the town-aroused them-selves and made way for several, apparently, Dervishes, for they wore gibbahs, to come on board. Major Gordon at first resented this intrusion. We had seen covered to be some prisoners just re leased by the Sirdar from the Khalifa's prison, and had come on board to have their chains knocked off. By the light of a lamp the Melik's artificer, with chise and hammer, set to work on shackle and chain. As anklet after anklet was struck off-for several of the prisoners had at least four thick iron rings on each ankle -the joy and satisfaction depicted on the faces of these miserable captives was leased prisoners as they passed on deck. One name particularly attracted Major Gordon's attention. He was told to remain for a while on board, a chair was brought, and the major turned to us and "This man is Ibrahim Pasha Fauzi, chief of the staff to my who, after his assassination, was spared by the Mahdi, but thrown into chains, by the Mandi, but thrown into chains, and by accident has come on to this boat to-night." It was indeed a happy meeting, for Fauzi was Gordon's favorite and most trusted officer. He had suffered much in the early days of his captivity, being tied for many days to a date-palm and brutally flogged till he gave up the whereabours of what little In addition to this Republican loss, there is a Democratic majority of about 1,600 against him in Adams, 80 in Blackford, and about 1,300 in Wells, making 4,380. Congressman Henry's majority was 2,532, and this is considered abnormal. The claim of the Democratis that Lotz will be elected by 2,000, is, in my opinion, extravagant. My opinion, based on what reliable Republicans tell me, is that if the election was held to day, Lotz would be elected by from 300 to 500. In my next I will tell of the post-office trouble here, and the effect it is having on Gromer's race.

The Sultan was the first boat to sight the coveted goal, and the first Britishers to look upon the Mahdi's tomb were Captain Keppel, Prince Christian, Commander Cowan and Major Dodd. The gunboats now hurried back with the news, handed over the prisoners, and the tied up for the night.

The following morning at daybreak the Shelkh, Meilk, and Nassah escorted the Shelkh, Meilk, and Nassah escorted the Tamal, which was towing up the Thirty-office trouble here, and the effect it is having on Gromer's race.

reconciled ourselves to the prospect of remaining on shore all night in an at-mosphere impregnated with the stenct of the rapidly decomposing corpses in the forts and on the embankment, and the close proximity of the hundreds of wretched, dirty, foul, rag-clad people huddling under our very bows.

The possibility of a new adventure sweeter surroundings was therefore lightful. Fighting Ship. The Melik is a fighting ship, and with ittle accommodation but for guns and unners, so my bed was the platform of the fore battery gun, and my camera my pillow. I always had to be up betimes tions before the turret was cleared for action.

As the Melik steamed by the gloomy plood-smeared walls of Omdurman the horizon ahead seemed to stretch out be-fore us as if lining a vast ocean. The banks of the river widened and fell back and we seemed to be entering a large estuary, or sea. This was the White Nile or Bahr-el-Apiad, and was certainly the widest part of the wonderful African highway we had yet seen. Shortly after sunrise a signal was transferred from the flagship through her to the Melik "to return to Omdurman and keep a sharp lookout on the west bank for any signs of the Khalifa's party flying south, and to communicate with the Egyptian cavfollowing up the fugitives." long time not a living soul was to be slowly approached. We found them to be Gyp cavalry—the horses could go no further. The Khalifa had escaped them, and pursuit for the moment was hope-

After riding thirty miles south they gave up the chase and returned for many horses were dropping by the way. Luckily the camel corps, under Tudway Bey, came up about midday, and his camels' rations were divided with the horses.

The men also shared their biscuits with the treopers, for in their hurry to catch the Khallfa, rations were not thought of with the cavalry. Some of the officers, among whom was the smart young offi-cer of the blues, the Marquis of Tullibardine, had been living on the ungener-ous diet for the last three days of not much more than a biscuit per diem. One officer was so far exhausted with tigue and the effects of the sun that we took him on board the Melik, and proceeded back to Omdurman with cheerless news that the Khalita ha far slipped through our fingers. With the downfall of the Khalifa, the death of Mahdism, a great joy had returned to Omdurman. Once more the blue curling smoke from marghile, or cigarette, will ascend from compound and housetop, for smoking for thirteen long years had bon denied the people of idan on pain of death.

ON THE GRID-IRON FIELD

A GOOD GAME EXPECTED BETWEEN PURDUE AND INDIANS.

Indianapolis Athletic Club Defeated at Chicago by a Small Score-Local Games-General Notes -Other Sports.

The meeting of the Purdue University eleven and the Indian football team from Lawrence, Kas., on the gridiron at Newby oval to-morrow afternoon, gives promise of being one of the football events of the year in Indianapolis. It is asserted for the Red men that they make up one of the strongest elevens in the West. It is said their playing is clean, and what the club facks in weight it endeavors to make by speed. A number of Indian tribes, including the Sloux. Pawnee, Stockbridge and Oneldas, are represented on the team. The game will be called at 2 p. m.

High Schol and U. of I.

A foot-ball game was played Saturcampus between teams from the Indianapolis High School and the University of Indianapolis. The score was 6 to 0 in favor of the college eleven. The predominant feature of the contest was an exhibition of "rag chewing." The High School boys played a fast, skillful game and showed superior team work. The university men showed utter want of team work and practice. They did not even seem to have signals. But the individual play was strong. In the second line-up, Place, the university's full-back and captain, suffered a broken ankle Duncan's forty-yard run was a brilliant one. He made a touch-down and kicked goal successfully.

The late opening of college has been a handicap to the training of the But-ler men. There are, however, several experfenced players on the team. Manager Sweeney has arranged the following games: At the State University, Bloom-ington, October 22: at Earlham College, Richmond. October 29; at DePauw, Greencastle, November 5.

Athletic Club at Chicago.

Chicago, October 17 .- The Indianapolis Athletic Club was defeated by the Chi-cago Athletic Association on the gridiron Saturday afternoon, the score being 11 to The weather conditions were good, but the crowd was small. It was a con-test in which ragged playing was the most prominent feature. The Chicago most prominent feature. The Chicago elaven owed most of its score to the work of Grayer and Wellington. Others on the team played poorly. The Indianapolis club was weak on its line, and its back players were outclassed. As the first half was closing, Wellington darted around the Indianapolis end and made sixty yards before he could be stopped. The time of the halves was twenty-five and twenty minutes. twenty-five and twenty minutes.

Training School and Muncie. The Muncle High School eleven was Business Men's Driving Park Saturday afternoon by the Industrial Training School. It was a one-sided affair, which resulted in the score of 44 to 0. The Training School eleven was of much lighter weight than the Muncte team, but outplayed it at every turn. The win-hers were especially strong in blocking, and Cline, Rhinehart, Coval and Shideler made sensational runs.

Football Player Badly Hurt. Butte; Mont., October 17 .- In the foot all game between Butte and Deadwood, Mahoney, left half-back for Butte, got under the pile in a mix-up. NATIONAL LEAGUE SEASON'S END. Last Games Played Saturday-Three Clubs Made Money.

The National League closed its season Saturday. None of the clubs made an important change in its percentage. Boston and Baltimore played a slugging game, which Boston won. It is stated that three clubs have made money this season-Boston, Chicago and Cincinnati. The three are reported to be "away ahead," but the profits of each for the year are not stated. It is esti-mated that the New York team is be-hind $50,000. Brooklyn is thought to be nearly as far behind. New York was one of the poorest patrons of baseball to country this year. Water and claret punch were served took the club three hours to discuss ts water; punch took a mere momentafter the water. The occasion was the moker" to receive and discuss the report of the special committee appointed to investigate the Hord proposal to sell the water-works to the city. The report, together with Mr. A. L. Mason's letter, was read by Secretary Woollen. At the invitation of President Parry, of the club, water expert Hill was present, and spoke on the investigation he had made. He emphasized as the most important showing of the investigation, the purity and the abundance of the deep-well water used as a supply here. This, he said, put the city above any other in the world. Mayor Taggart, responding to an inviation from President Parry, said he had submitted the Hord proposal and the ex-pert's report to the public the minute they reached him. He had refrained from discussing them while they were under going investigation by commercial and industrial bodies, but since discussion had ended, the mayor said he felt that the price asked was far in excess of what the property was worth. "The city," said Mr. Taggart, "will pay nothing for any franchise it has given away. He said the Council and Board of Pub-lic Works would take up the water ques-tion this week for further discussion. W. H. H. Miller asked why there was any particular need of requiring "this generation" which, besides carrying the municipal debt almost to the limit, was carrying a heavy load of improvement debt, to buy the water plant. He want ed to know why it was any more needfu that the city own the water plant than

Mayor Uses a Poker Argument. E. B. Martindale said water was the same as air to the people of a city-both must be pure. For this reason alone the city was justified in purchasing the water plant. He said the city should own a water system. He suggested that the city invite competition for a new franchise, and that this would force the present company to sell at a fair price or sacrifice its property through competition. Mr. Martindale favored the organi-zation of a company on the Mason plan Mr. Martindale asked the mayor if he could see anything wrong with that

Remarks were made by W. A. Pickens
S. E. Rauh, L. C. Walker, Dr. P. H Jameson and others, all to the effect that the Hord price was excessive. Mr. Walk-er and Dr. Jameson thought the city should first be protected by a constituamendment. Mr. Walker insisted that nothing could be done indirectly that could not be done directly.

A black coat and a note were found on the canal bank, near the aqueduc: last night. The note was signed "G. W. Wilson," and read that the writer was tired of life and had drowned himself. He requested that his body be sent to his home in Chicago. The police were notified of the discovery. They and the coroner regarded the note and coat as an attempt at a practical joke.

Third Attempt at Suicide. Lafayette Walker, an upholsterer, living at No. 707 East St. Clair street, made the third attempt to end his life Saturday night by swallowing twenty grains of morphine. EIGHT SPANISH SHIPS NOW IN THE UNITED STATES NAVY.

Decision to Keep All Vessels Purchased During the War Expected to Cause a Boom in American Shipping Interests.

New York, October 17 .- A dispatch the Tribune from Washington says: The effective strength of the United States navy has been increased by eight warship vessels which recently flew the Spanish flag. Five of these are now attached to Admiral Dewey's squadron, two are credited to the North Atlantic station, and the last is the cruiser Infanta Maria Teresa, now under her own steam, preparing to start for Norfolk to be made ready for active service Several days ago the Navy Department, which is now making up its list of vessels in service, a customary exhibit in the secretary's annual report to Congress, sent a message to Admiral Dewey for an accurate list of the prizes he was now utilizing in his fleet. The question shows what latitude the department allows the admiral, and the answer tells how unhesitatingly he has acted for the good of the service, and to strengthen his own forces without waiting for help from home. He replied:

"Following former Spanish vessels in my possession: Manila (cruiser), commissioned July 20, Lieut, Commander Frederick Singer, Callao (cruiser), commissioned July 2, Lieut. Benjamin Tappan; gunboats Leyte and Mindanao also, armed launch Barcelona, tempo rarily commissioned for action August 13, Naval Cadet W. R. Hite. "DEWEY."

The officers named are in command of the respective vessels.

In the Atlantic, the only Spanish ves sels now in actual service, as a result of their being captured by the navy, are the gunboats Alvarado, commanded by Lieut. Victor Blue, and the Sandoval commanded by Lieut. E. A. Anderson. These are exceedingly good vessels for duty in Cuban waters, where the Span-lards found them most useful. They are now at Caimaneira in commission. The Maria Teresa, the only ship of the Cer-Maria Teresa, the only ship of the Cer-vera squadron raised so far, is also at Calmaneira. The Teresa will be armed with guns saved from the Colon and other Spanish ships, to replace those of her own which may have been ruined. She will be a trophy ship throughout.

Boom in Shipping Interests Expected

A dispatch to the Herald from Wash-It is expected that the decision of the Secretary of the Navy to retain all the vessels purchased during the war will have the effect of causing a boom in American shipping interests. It comes just at a time when there is an unusual demand for ships flying the American flags on account of the expanding com-merce of the United States in general and particularly on account of the decision of the administration to confine trade between American ports and Porte Rico to American vessels.

The navy, in preparing for war, drew very largely upon the tonnage of the coastwise and foreign lines sailing under the American flag, and the business of these lines can not be restored to its former proportions until vessels have been built to supply the places of those taken by the Government. To restore to these lines the number of vessels they ever so romantic and their married life be very unhappy. There are common sense considerations outside of love that have a world to do with the making of married happiness. One of the most important of these considerations is the good health of both parties to the sacred tie. The young man who is in the incipient stages of consumption commits a crime if he marries before he is restored to health. He condemns his wife to the life of a nurse and his children to early death, or lives of sickness and suffering. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures of per cent. of all cases of consumption if taken in its earlier stages. This is its record established during the past thirty years. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder, nerve-tonic and general restorative. general restorative.

The young woman who suffers from weakness and disease of the delicate and important organs that make wifehood and

I often woke up in the morning feeling a distress at the pit of my stomach and sore across my bowels as if I had strained myself lifting. The minute I got on my feet the gas commenced to rise, there was a tendency to nausea and I wanted to vomit. At other times I could neither throw off the gas nor vomit either and it was then that I suffered most terribly. Nature supplies every person with a surplus of vitality or nerve force, which may be drawn upon to assist in times of sickness and need. If from overwork, severe strain, worry or the ravages of disease this surplus is consumed, the vitality of the system is lowered and nervous debility follows. Thousands of unfortunate invalids have found Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine to be the greatest of all helps in aiding nature to repair their wasted energies. STATE POLITICAL GOSSIP.

The petition under which the names of the present judges of the Appellate Court will go on the State ballot along with the Republican State ticket was filed with the Governor at 10 o'clock to-day by Merrill Moores and Louis Newberger. Charles S. Hernly, chairman of the Republican State committee; Samuel H. Spooner, secretary of the committee, and Charles W. Fairbanks, United States Senator, were the first three men to sign the petition. The State Board of Elec-tion Commissioners will meet to-morrow to order the State ballot to press. The five tickets are already in type, and the State printer expects to begin printing the ballots to-morrow night. The delivery to the counties will begin the latter part of the week.

The election will take place three weeks from to-morrow. Each party will push its speaking campaign from now on Senator Fairbanks will be in the campaign for the Republicans this week and next, and the managers of that party look for good results from the visit of the President, notwithstanding the reception in his honor will be non-partisan in character. The Democrats have increased their list of speakers, and expect to present their side to the voters of every county within the next three weeks. Neither party has arranged for weeks. Neither party has arranged for the presence of speakers from other States. Lack of interest in the campaign is still reported to each of the State committees. Few of the speakers for either party have been able to draw large audiences. The Republicans take the view that the voters are satisfied, and will support the Republican ticket, while the Democrats have an impression that the lack of interest will help their party to success.

Albert J. Beveridge, on account of his prior engagements in this State, has declined the invitation to close the Republican campaign in Massachusetts with a speech at Boston. For the same reason, he has declined an invitation to speak at the peace jubilee in Chicago to-morrow

The Situation. [Boston Commercial Bulletin.]
The stock market is unmistakably in the doldrums. Has it been sold to a standstill, or will values be whittled on gradually until about election time? This is the question of the hour, which each must answer for himself. Clear light ahead is not to be had, and this in spite of bullish general factors. The uncer-tainties in connection with the election are just now paramount. All other fac-House of Representatives, and acquire a majority in the Senate, the market will very likely take the bit between its teeth and make a faster bull mile than has yet been recorded. On the other hand, if the Democrats gain sufficiently to de-stroy the House Republican majority, then we are likely to have a bear picnic. Consequently, with this situation in rocess of development, is is somewha idle to talk about the good material conditions of the country. Bank clearings might be a million dollars a minute, railroad earnings might be showing much larger increases, and general trade ight be three times as active as it is, yet we doubt if the speculative markets would undergo much change of aspect. We see St. Paul earnings the largest in its history, yet the stock is dull at 107. interests recognize only too vell the vital importance of the next lection. will always cumber the earth and be a burden upon higher and nobler efforts so long as human nature continues imper-fect, which will be to the crack o' doom. The sound sense of the people afore-mentioned, must be relied upon to separ-ate Algerism from the real issues at stake, and appraise it at its true value, namely, as an ephemeral misfortune in an otherwise lofty and statesmanlike pol-icy.

Boston Wool Market.

[Boston Bulletin.] Sales for the week, 2.189,000 pounds.

There are some new developments in the struction, of nominal encouragement at least, that were lacking last week, and while actual business is confined to earlier meager limits, the market is improved in its outlook.

Manufacturers are taking quite extensive supplies from warehouses, which gives definite proof of the need of wool by certain consumers, but as far as actual purchasers from the market are concerned, manufacturers do not figure prominently. In fact, it is more of a traders' market to-day in which large blocks of foreign wools have changed hands without going to consumers.

On domestic wools figuring is too close to admit of such operations, and consequently such sales of home wools as are recorded are mostly, if not entirely, for manufacturers' account.

The attempts of producers to place heir cloths on a parity with the cost of new clip wool havebeen a ingularly un-successful. In fact, low-priced goods only have been salable in light-weights on account of the immense quantities of goods held over from last year's exessive importations and productions. In clew of this condition of affairs, it appears practically impossible that dealers could have held the market at an unwavering level through eight or nine months of inactivity, if growers had not tuck so stubbornly to their asking

Brokers' Gossip. [By L. W. Louis's Wire.]

New York: Market opened quiet and fairly steady. London houses were moderate buyers of Northern Pacific common and preferred, and were sellers of Southern Railway preferred. The tendency of the professionals during the first as to buy stock on moderate declines. Exactly the explanation for the weakness in the coal stocks, no one could find out; there has been no material change in the conditions in the prevailing anthracite coal trade. Sugar was somewhat weak during the first hour, but the appearance of belated borrowers in the loan crowd, which caused an advance of % premium for the use of stock, caused some covering and resulted in higher writes. in higher prices. American Tobacco sold ex-dividend and was decidedly heavy, there being little support to it, the only large buying being by McIntyre and Wardwell, who took 2,000 shares.

money, and that Democratic triumphs in these States will not be a bear point. They will be.

Even before the Democracy was given over body and soul to free silver and Bryanism, Wall street did not take kindly to Democratic victories. Why it has been so would be useless to discuss; the fact remains that it has been so, consequently a bull market after Noverber's would seem a distinct impossibility it the Republicans lose their majority in the House of Representatives. Hence, in our judgment, it would be wise to keep one's speculative operations well reduced until greater certainty of the outcome of the coming elections can be obtained than is now possible. If the Republicans hold their own, the market will go up; if they gain a majority in the Senate as well as retain their present majority in the House, buy anything and buy it for stood big profits.

This is the situation in a nutshell. The suspense will prove irritating, but under the American system of government such periods-care inevitable. The one thing that bons fide holders of securities can always jle to, however, is the good, sound common sense of the American beodies come infected with some such fever as that of tree silver, but given sumforent triumphant. The dauger lies in large numbers of the people becoming temporarily blinded to the real issues at stake by some such crudity as Aigerism. The later is only an incident, but a veople rage is apt to make of it an issue. Such incompetents as a the Secretary of War are to be found in all governments. STOCKS, MONEY AND BONDS. ractional Gains Marked the Open ing of the Market.

New York, October 17.—With the single exception of Northern Pacific, prices advanced at the opening of the stock market, the gains in almost all cases being a small fraction. Northern Pacific quickly rallied from its small opening decline. The new Federal steel stock sold at 31 and 311/2. Hawaiian Commercial advanced 11/2 over Saturday's sale price, Sugar showed a tendency to sag after it opened. Tobacco, which was quoted ex. dividend of 2 per cent., fell to 1114, but no sympathetic losses of consequence occurred elsewhere, and covering forced a rise of 2 points. Support in Sugar ad-vanced the price to 113 and the general market followed the leaders to a frac-tional extent. Federal steel was fever-ish and lower and about 11 o'clock the The bears met little opposition in the coalers, and New Jersey Central lost 5½, Delaware & Hudson 3½ and the Reading stock 1½ to 3. Lackawanna dropped to 136 bid, but subsequently stiffened to 141 bid, against 1451/4, the last sale price. Money.

Had light receipts. Our market was strong on all grades. Good to prime mediums and heavies with dock to make roughs good, sold at $3.80 to $3.90, and lights, 130 to 190 averages, docked and weighed straight, sold at $3.65 to $3.85. Will be steady market to-morrow unless weather turns warm. Look for lower prices later in week. Be sure and have good margin to stand decline. Chicago was 50 lower to-day. Sand us your mediums and heavies, as we need them. We have always been the best buyers for the best hogs. You make mistake if you send your good hogs to any others than us. Send us some good, healthy pigs, as we have orders for them. Pigs, 110 bs. and up, $4.40 to $3.60. Pigs must be health).

PENNSYLVANIA COMPANY ISSUES A CIRCULAR TO ITS EMPLOYES.

Assignment of Pay Forbidden on Pain of Dismissal - Other Roads May Follow the Example-General Railroad News.

M. W. Marsfield, superintendent of the Indianapolis & Vincennes, has issued the following general order to all employes: "The management of the Pennsylvania ines has been, and is now, very much annoyed by the efforts of a money-lender named D. H. Tolman, having offices in years, died at his home in Englewood, the principal cities of the United States, establish his business among the em ployes of the Pennsylvania lines by means of sending out attractive circulars. The plan is to loan money to employes under an assignment of their future salary, which is contrary to the rules of the company. "The rate of interest is exorbitant, sometimes reaching 250 per cent, or more per annum. Employes are hereby notified that if it comes to the knowledge of the officers of the company that an assignment of pay has been made by an employe to secure a loan from this man, or any other person, such fact will be con-sidered sufficient cause for his prompt dismissal from the service. Please be governed accordingly.' The superintendents on all of the divisions are issuing similar orders, and

CONGRESSMAN OVERSTREET

HIS RETURN HOME AND VIEWS ON POLITICAL PROSPECTS.

Says the Republicans will Keep Con gress with Possibly a Reduced Money Question.

Jesse Overstreet, member of Congress rom this district, came home from Washington to-day to enter his campaign for campaign several weeks ago, but was detained in Washington as secretary of the national congressional committee. For the next three weeks he will speak will try to meet and talk informally with many voters.

The Congressman's opening speech will be made to-night in a hall at Morris and Harding streets, West Indianapolis shall have nothing to conceal in campaign," said he this afternoon. "I am not ashamed of my record on the currency reform question, and shall stand or fall by that record. I have confidence in the people of this district, and on that issue feel sure of re-election."

national congressional committee has afcongressional elections, and, he says, in speaking of the outlook, that the Republicans will have the House of Representatives by a reduced majority, and will control the Senate.

the Senate. nittee has taken notice of the apathy existing all over the country, said he. "Business men, as a rule, have been too busy to engage in politics. Our reports from all over the country show that the manufacturers are behind with their orders; merchants are crowded with business, and the farmers have harvested a big wheat crop and are now ready to harvest a larger corn crop. These things are so occupying the minds of the people that they are not easily interested in politics."

Danger of Apathy. We all know that it is the range of litics that apathy works to the disadvantage of the party in power, and we have felt that there was danger of a stay-at-home vote. Generally peaking, there will be an overwhelming Republican victory. The Democrats stand a chance to make gains in the East and the Republicans will gain in the West. With a few notable exceptions, the Democratic nominees for Con-gress have been nominated on free silver platforms, and have immediately pigeonoled those platforms and begun con for the conduct of the war. We all know that wherever one of these Congressmen is elected the platform will be pulled out of the pigeon-hole and the victory heralded as one for free silver. Our friends who are in favor of sound currency ought to understand this, and be careful not to contribute to a free silver victory."

Speaking of the statement of Leon O. Balley, the Democratic nominee for Congress, that copies of the currency reform bill introduced in the House were not to be had, the Congressman said: "When the bill was introduced the Associated Press carried several columns about it—an unusual thing—and hundreds of thousands of copies have been printed and distributed. If there is scarcity of the bill at this time, it is because of the un-

the country."

Leon O. Bailey's appointments for this sounty have not yet been made out. He expects to begin talking to the voters of the county some time during the week.

A gray-haired woman, nearly sixty Saturday evening. The detectives were otified and when she was about to leave he store, detectives Gerber and Morgan requested her to call at the manager's the office and the stolen articles were found under her cape. She opened a big pocketbook and begged the managers of the store to allow her to pay for the the police station. There she unrolled wad of bills and put up her bond o $200. Matron Gregoire says there must have been at least $400 in the roll of bills. She gave the name of "Sallie Reed." She aid to-day her real name is Sellers.

The case was heard in Police Court first time in her life that she had done such a thing. She was greatly depressed and wept the greater part of the time she was in the court-room. Her daughter sat by her side in the dock and tried to comfort her old mother. Her daughter testified that her mether, some mouths ago, had been ill, since which time she has not been accountable for all her actions. The case was a trying one. The judge took it under advisement, say "This shop-lifting is becoming entirely too common. I have several times re vious to their thefts, but I am inclined to think that a very severe punishment should be meted out as an example to all who may contemplate such thieving."

MISSING VOUCHER FOUND

CONTENTION AS TO HOW IT WAS REPLACED IN BOX.

Alleged that Spencer "Slided" It Into Its Place While Pretending to Hunt for It-Question of Allowances.

These are the days when the Repub licans are saying "Ah-h-h!" and "Ha-a-a!" They are also the days when Democrats are saying "Tish-h-h!" like-

The county campaign is on virulence, Acrimonious charges are made by both sides. In the language of the "squared circle" the parties are "mixing it." Democrats say hey have been toying with the Republican county administration, and that a "knockout" involving two county officers s in the process of evolution, and that ble, as if with an earthquake." Thus and so, it continues, the Republicans assert-ing that before the "thing is over" the Democrats will all run to cover.

The Journal this morning charged E. M. Johnson, city comptroller, and C. H. Spencer, clerk of the Board of Public Works, with having surreptitiously slipped a missing voucher into its place n the county commissioners' records. is voucher was for making a record dropped and insolvent taxes (for which $500 was allowed), and for making urer was recorded, but the commissioners' record did not show the allowance. Deputy Auditor Shepard could not find the voucher. Authority for issuing the son heard of the discovery, he says, and asked Mr. Shepard if he could come up after office hours last Thursday and see if it had been misplaced. Sometimes this happens. Mr. Johnson and Mr. pens. Mr. Johnson and went to the commissioners' searched through the boxes They both say they suspected that Spencer found the voucher, he says, in-side a voucher for Tanner & Sullivan, in the file box for May, 1895, when it should have been for April, 1895. The Journal says Spencer carried the voucher with him, "in his vest pocket" and slipped it in with the others, and then pretended to make the discovery. C. H. Spencer was asked as to the truth of the story. He said: "It is a lie. Not only a lie, but a foolish lie. It anybody fooled with that voucher, it was found the voucher inside of a bill of Tanner & Sullivan. As to how it got there, I do not know."
Mr. Johnson said: "I arranged with Mr. Shepard to look for the missing voucher Bert Spencer went with me. We took the boxes to the counter under a chandelier where we could be observed by all who were present. The entire office force remained while we were looking for it. Mr. Spencer exclaimed that he had found it. This was a shock to all cause it spoiled their scheme. We posed the matter would end there, it has not.

"I want to say this much: If I was not a candidate against the present county auditor, I would never be mentioned. The purpose seems to be to persecute me for the alleged offenses of some one else. These things are being cooked up for the benefit of a county officer who has drawn illegal allowances, and who has drawn filegal allowances, and who wants to draw them four years longer. I say they are illegal, and, notwithstanding County Attorney Brown, or any one else who becomes the apologist for these things, I cite them to the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Legler vs. Payne, Indiana Reports, Volume 147, page 181." Payne, page 181.

"That decision clearly holds all extra allowances illegal. In saying this, I am reminded of the Republicans who come to me and tell me I am making a mis-take to raise a howl shout these extra allowances, as I may want them myself. I want to say that I regard them as illegal, and if it should be my fortune to be elected county auditor, I will perform every duty of the auditor for the salary allowed by the fee and salary law. This allowed by the fee and sakery law. In is will be good enough for me, and I will not ask nor receive extra allowances." The case referred to by Mr. Johnson is that of Legler vs. Paine, and other members of the Board of County Commissioners of Vanderburg county. Leg-ler, the auditor, had filed a claim for under the fee and salary law 1879. The commissioners, assuming that the fee and salary law of 1895 was valid declined to allow the claim, which was or services for the quarter under the old law. The claim was taken to the lircuit Court of Vanderburg, which held the law of 1895 valid.

It was then taken to the Supreme Court of the State, where the decision of the Circuit Court was sustained, Howard, judge, writing the opinion. The intent of the Legislature, as drawn from whole act, and from each of its pro-ions must, the Court said, vall; and this intent read as it must be, in the light of the circumstances surrounding the passage of the act, the earnest desire shown to destroy the evils which had grown up destroy the evils which had grown up under the fee system, plainly is that the salary named for each officer shall constitute his sole compensation for all services, and that every fee and emolument whatever, and collected from whatever source, shall be paid by him into the county treasury at the end of each quarter; and that out of the fund so made up, his quarterly salary shall be paid by allowance of the board of county commissioners, ommissioners,

"And should any officer so far forget his duty under the law in this respect as to fall to pay over to the county treas-urer the amounts collected by him, then besides forfeiting his salary, it is pro-vided by Section 132 of each act, that the shall be liable to criminal prosecu-tion in the name of the State."

In 1897 the fee and salary law was

In 1897 the fee and salary law was amended so as to put the auditors and treasurers upon a straight salary, and not limit it to the amount of fees collected. The only change in the section was to strike out the words "auditor" and "treasurer."

Deputy Auditor Shepard says he did not see either Johnson or Spencer "slip" in the missing voucher. Charles Egger, a deputy auditor, says he saw furtive motions on the part of Spencer; that he turned sideways and looked uneasy. Joshua Zimmerman, another deputy, declined to discuss the affair until he had talked with Mr. Johnson and Mr.

he had talked with Mr. Johnson and Mr. Spencer. A reporter visited Spencer and Johnson, and they told him to tell Zimmerman to tell all he knew. Zimmerman was told this, but still declined to talk til after he had "seen Johnson." Mr. Johnson then made a written re quest that Mr. Zimmerman tell the reporter, Mr. Zimmerman then said: "So far as Mr. Johnson is concerned, I saw nothing. Further than this I decline to Pay Received by Auditors. Republicans say that in the last eleven months of Taggart's administration as county auditor he received in salary $13,-120.22; for handling the school fund, $3,530.30, and in allowances $18,303.42. Be-$3,530.30, and in allowances $18,303.42. Be-sides this, it is estimated he received $4,000 in fees.

Auditor Smith has drawn, besides his yearly salary of $18,500 ($17,500 from the county and $1,000 from the city) special allowances amounting in all to $16,579.23 since he took office. Mr. Smith has been in office since December, 1895.

Harding's Gravel Bank. The Cossel family feels that it is get-ting undue notoriety growing out of the Harding gravel bank case. There are two branches of the family, one Republican and one Democratic. Two members of the Republican branch and one of the Democratic branch, three in all, instead of five, as has been alleged, are hauling gravel for the county.

Each receives $2.50 a day(including team) and each team averages seven loads of gravel a day. The county pays 7 cents a load for Harding's gravel in the pit. The Cossels say that this gravel is good, clean bar gravel, and 2 cents cheaper than the price at English's gravel banks. It is near the roadway on which the gravel is placed. There is gravel nearer, but in order to get to it, the county would have to pay $50 for a right-of-way across the Beldenmeister farm.

Judge McCray gave the usual instructions to the grand jury this morning, making no special reference to disclosto the grand jury this morning, county affairs, and not endeavor ing to put any more emphasis on the law with regard to malfeasance than on other laws which he read to the jurors. He appointed Jesse D. Hamrick judge pro tem. SURRENDER OF INDIANS

mendment Made to the Constitution by the Episcopal Council. Washington D. C., October 17 .- At the neeting of the House of Deputies of the Spiscopal Council this morning, the Rev. William Bollard, of northern California, proposed the canon containing the re-quirements for the ordination of the riesthood be deemed in abeyance in missionary jurisdictions. He pointed that there were many devout laymen in such districts able to do excellent work and whom the church could call on if the canons permitted. The resolution was referred to the committee on canons.

The Rev. Mr. Stuck, of Dallas, Tex., offered a resolution providing for the ap-pointment of a joint committee of deputies and bishops to consider the erection of a memorial chapel at Jamestown, Va. where the first church of the Anglican denomination on this continent was established. Referred. A resolution offered by the Rev. Mr. Nelson, of western New York, was adopted, providing that future meetings of the council, as far as practicable, shall be held in unconsecrated buildings. The council then considered the amend-The council then considered the amendment to the constitution offered by the Rev. Dr. Huntington, of New York, on the question of church unity. The Rev. Mr. Faude, of Minnesota, offered the following substitute: "That a provision be made by the canon for the temporary use of other forms and directories of worship by congregations not already in union with this church."

The substitute seemed to satisfy Dr. Huntington. Before a vote was taken this clause was added to the substitute: "Who are willing to accept the special averagety of the hishons of the diocese." this clause was added to the substitute;
"Who are willing to accept the special oversight of the bishops of the diocese."
The whole substitute was then formally

BADGER

GEO. W. SLOAN'S HALF-CENTURY IN WASHINGTON STREET.

An Interesting Talk on City Business Customs and Development in That Time-Contrasts With the Early Days.

On the 19th day of October, 1898, George W. Sloan will have been fifty years in the drug business in the city of Indianapolis. This continuous half century of business life has been passed in Washngton street, in locations all within the limits of less than 500 feet.

Mr. Sloan was born in Harrisburg, Pa., June 28, 1835. His parents came to Indianapolis when he was two years old. They came by way of the Pennsylvania canal, crossed the Allegany mountains on the old "incline plane," parts of which are still in view from the Pennsylvania railroad. They then came down the Ohlo by steamboat to Madison; thence by stage to Indianapolis. "I have been told," said Mr. Sloan, "that a good part of the way from Madison here I rode in the lap of Henry P. Coburn, the father of the present Gen. John Coburn and of Henry Coburn." Mr. Sloan talks entertainingly of his experiences. "I entered the drug store of Dr. Craighead at the age of thirteen years, and presume I am the only man n this city now in business who was in business at that time. Clemens Vonnegut, the hardware merchant, is perhaps next in length of time in business in Washington street. The late Charles Mayer was for many years the oldest Washington street merchant. "When I first knew Washington stree

there were only four buildings in it that were three stories high. The rest were one and two-story houses, and nearly all were of frame. The old Hubbard Block, the predecessor of the present Hubbard Block, at the southwest corner of Washington and Meridian streets (first known as the Norris Block), was three stories high. The top story was used as Odd Fellows Hall. A threestory brick building, painted white, and known as 'Norwood's Corner,' stood on the northeast corner of Washington and Illinois streets, now occupied by the Claypool Block.

"Another three-story building stood on the site now occupied by the New York store. It was long known as the 'Wright House,' but previous to that it was S Avres & Co House, but previous to that it was known far and wide as 'Browning's Hofrom this was a three-story brick, the ground floor of which was occupied by Adam Knodle, shoemaker; Joseph Wert, aker, and James Tomlinson, druggist. Mr. Tomlinson is yet living, but has not been in business for many years. That space is now occupied by the Fletcher National Bank. The Capital Building, which still survives, was an-other brick edifice. It was four stories high, and when erected, forty-nine years ago, was the wonder and admiration of the town to a greater degree than the Majestic, the Stevenson and other of our fine, large buildings are now. The rooms on the ground floor are now occupied by Comstock, the jeweler; Landgraf, the tailor, and the Craig candy store. The upper stories were occupied as a hotel. The Capital House, of which the late Capt. John Cain was for many years the landlord. The upper part of this build-ing was later occupied by the Sentinel newspaper and printing office.

Captain Cain's Characteristics. "Captain Cain was short in hight, but exceedingly wide out and choleric in temper. For several years he lived in North East street, and had as his neighbor the late Aaron L. Hunt, the auctioneer, who good humor. Captain Cain had as great a dread of cattle, which were then fre-quently driven through out streets, as had Dr. Cophagus in 'Japhet in Search of a Father.' One day a little bunch of cattle came trooping down East street. The captain, who was in the street, making haste to get into safety, fell down. Mr. Hunt, who saw the cattle run over the prostrate captain, could not repress his laughter. The captain arose indignant and profane. What the

are you laughing at, ————? 'I am laughing,' said Mr. Hunt, 'to see what a fool you were to lie down. Did you think it easier for the cattle to jump over you lying down

"The town fifty years ago had betwee 3,500 and 4,000 people. Business was all of a retail character except that some jobbing in what would now be considered a ridioulously small way was done in gro-ceries and drugs. The four little drug stores of that day (Indianapolis now has 175 drug stores) sold great quantities of dye stuffs, such as indigo, madder, etc. Now none sells dye stuffs except a few line dyes to color small pieces of goods to color eggs. Aniline dyes were not own until ten years later. Fifty years ago there were little carding and fulling mills built on small streams throughout the country. Each had a loom or two, and made blankets and jeans. The jeans was made of cotten warp, with wool filling, and was almost the only wear for farmers and many townspeople. The jeans was usually colored an indigo blue.
Peddling wagons sold notions all through the country. In addition to pins, needles, threads and calicoes, they carried essences of peppermint and cinnamon, Godfrey's cordial (the precursor of soothing syrups). British oil opodildoc (a solidified soap liniment) and many remedies for fever and ague. They also sold mines of all bale in a solidified so of all bale in a solidified so of all bale in a solidified so of all bale in a solid solid spices of all kinds in a crude shape. Druggists' Work in Those Days. "At that time the druggist powdered all spices and most powdered drugs himself by beating them up in a mortar and sifting them through sieves made of bolting cloth. There was no doubt about hough the method of making them was tedious. The druggist made great quantities of black and blue inks for the peddlers. Blue ink was for many years in much demand, blue ink being the fad.

The druggist made nearly everything he used. When trade was slack at night made paper bags.

"The drug store of David Craighead, in which I began my apprenticeship, was where the entrance of Wasson's dry goods house new is. Two years later, in the apring of 1850, Mr, Craighead reton street (there were no street numbers then), the same site now occupied by my present place of business. In 1851 he put up a seda feuntain, which was ed an elegant piece of joiner's ing bought that interest and continued the business for many years.

"The failure of what were known as the wild-cat banks, strange as it may seem, was the foundation of Mr. Browning's prosp_rity, as it was that of several other indianapolis merchants. Business in those days was done on long credit. Nearly everything was put on a book, and settlement of accounts was usually made once a year. In the wild-cat panic people were afraid of their money, which was rapidly depreciating in value, and hastened to pay their debts, rather than keep their money over night. Collections never before nor since have been as good as at that time. People were anxious to keep their credit up by paying their bills in money that in a short time might be valueless. Among the merchants who profited by this panic were Joseph Little, James Drum, John and George Anderson (the last-named is still living), James Sulgrove, who had a saddler's shop directly east of Mr. Browning's drug store, about No. 20 West Washington, and West & Stewart (the latter was father of Charles G. Stewart, of the Sentinel), directly west of it.

"These merchants would sort out the money of the different banks among themselves, and when $1,600 of any ane bank was got together it would be taken to the Auditor of State, who would give in exchange therefor the bond by which the circulation was secured. New York exchange would be given for this bond, and deposit made there to the credit of the sender, and it was good for drugs, dry goods and other commodities.

Days of Barter.

"Fifty years ago there was little money

Days of Barter. "Fifty years ago there was little money and a great deal of barter. The farmer brought in produce, wood, corn, hay and other things, which he would exchange other things, which he drug store. the for supplies at the drug store, the grocery and elsewhere. The merchants in the street were brought nearer together by this system than they have been since that time. Each was interested in the other's prosperity. If one could not use all the supplies brought in by a farmer he would get others in the street to take a part and make an exchange of commodities with the farmer. Orders for goods were given by one house on another, and when Saturday night came many wage-workers took much of what was due them in orders on radesmen. There was one thing, however, that had to be paid in money. That "The druggist in that day bought rags, eathers, flaxseed, beeswax and ginseng. Everything into and out of the city up to 1847 came and went by wagon. first railroad—that from Madison to this city, eighty-four miles-was completed in October, 1847. Other railroads followed october, 1847. Other railroads followed and the business of wagoning goods was soon a thing of the past.

"Fifty years ago our heavy goods were shirped by vessel from the Atlantic seaboard to New Orleans. They were there loaded on steamboats and brought up the Mississippi and Ohio rivers to Madison. The water freight all this long way was the state of th son. The water freight all this long way round did not amount to as much as the freight from Madison to this city. It would, however, take from four to six months to get goods by this route. Another route that came into use later was from New York city up the Hudson river to Albany, thence by canal to Buffalo, thence by lake to Toledo or Sandusky, thence by caral to Cincinnati, thence by the Oiho river to Madison, and thence by rail to Indianapolis—with only eighty-four miles of the distance by rail. Forfour miles of the distance by rail. Forwarders and warehousemen at Madison did a great business in those days. That bustling little city furnished Indianapolis with a number of its live business men among whom are Robert S. McKee, Edward Branham, Victor Hendricks and Michael O'Connor. The firm of Polleys & Butler, of Madison, forwarders and warehousemen, was known far and wide.

Mr. Butler was the father of Mrs. Ab-

Banks Forty Years Ago. "The leading bank here forty years ago and more was the old branch of the Bank of the State of Indiana, and no merchant could at any one time get more than $200 cut of it. Stoughton A. Fletcher had a bank, out of which has grown the present Fletcher National Bank, but which never issued any money. About that time there were the 'Central Bank,' the 'Traders' Bank' and the 'Farmers' Bank,' and others which did issue money. All of them 'busted.' Mr. Browning lost $800, a fortune in that day, in 'the Bank of the Capital.' This last-named bank occupied the room in which the Danbury hat building now stands. floor lasted until about five years ago. "The trade of Indianapolis done by wagons did not extend to a distance of more than forty to forty-five miles in any direction. The town labored under the disadvantage of not being on a water-way. Madison, on the Ohio, was a metropolis: Logansport, Lafayette and Terre Haute were of great commercial importance. The Wabash and Eric canal was in those days spoken of with "The pork packing industry in Indianapolis began to develop immediately on the completion of the Madison road. Before that time there was little pork packing done here. Mansur & Ferguson and Benjamin Blythe were the pioneer packers. The Mansurs erected their slaughter-house on the other side of White river, but their packing-house was in South Pennsylvania street, south was in South Pennsylvania street, south of South street and west of the Madison railroad tracks.

"The other day an acquaintance said to me that a few years ago he had put down a well in South Pennsylvania street, and that he had been greatly surprised to get water heavily charged with salt. I explained to him how this happened. Salt from this old packing-house had impregnated the earth to a considerable depth, and the flow of water was from the site of this old packing-

Stage Coaches and Mud Wagons. "The building of railroads greatly in-reased the trade of Indianapolis, and entirely changed the character of transportation. There were lines of stage coaches on all the great roads coming to Indianapolis when I was a boy. The stages were of the 'Concord stage' pat-tern, drawn by four horses. 'The vehicles were painted red. The last one were used in the summer and fall, when the roads were fairly good, and fortunately there was timber to make cordu-roy roads, or in many places these highways would have dropped out of sight. As it was, they were impassable for nearly half the year to stage coaches. "It was then that the 'mud-wagon,' as it was called, came into use. This vehicle was built like an army wagon, and carried four to s'x seats. It had a hickory spring. When the roads were too bad to allow of pulling four wheels through, the front wheels alone were used. A queensware crate was put on the front axle and the mail was pulled hrough.

"Two weeks after I came here Zachar; Taylor was elected President of the United States. Since that time there have been many presidential elections, and the campaigns have always been warm in Indiana. The campaigns of 1856 and 1860 were notable ones. Pole-raisings were a feature of those early campaigns The last big pole-raisings were in 1856 The Democrats raised a hickory pole in front of the Sentinel office, which was then where Fletcher's Bank is now. It was built like a mast, had cross-trees, and the upper part was halled up by blook and tackle. There was a sailor here who had drifted inland. His name was Ben Philbean, and he afterward became town marshal. Something was the matter with the halyards, and he climbed to the top of the pole and fixed them. The Whigs had a pole on the corner where the Ingalls Block now stands. The Whig paper, the Journal, was in an old red brick building on the site now covered by the rear portion of the Ingalis Block.
"A pole was raised in the center of Washington street, at Merician, on the 29th of August, 1860. In the construction of a new street in 1888 the stump of that old ash pole was found. Peter Routier made a number of canes out Peculiarities of Drug Business. "When I began the drug business commercial article, was anknown. The entire line of fluid extracts has come in since that time, and all the so-called pharmaceutical prepara-tions. The list of things is too long to catalogue. The taking of medicine has been robbed of its disagreeable features since that time. There was a great dework, as it really was. It was made by William Saltmarsh, who is still living.

sale here at that time. The popular drink was whisky. Many merchants had a jug of it to treat their customers, especially the farmers and others who came from a distance. Some ale was sold. Brandy was considered the 'genteel' drink. Good brandy was then sold cheaper than whisky is now. Four dollars would buy a gallon of fine brandy and $6 would buy a brandy that to-day sells at $16. "The first manufacturing establishment here of any consequence was Underhill's foundry. It stood on the site of the present Second Presbyterian church. Mr. Underhill made pots and kettles and some other small castings. He employed four or five men. Nicholas McCarty, father of the present gentleman of that name, had a hemp factory west, of what later on was the site of the old rollingmill. West There was a rope-walk on South store is now. This, early in the sixties, became a wheel bullding now stands. Sarven wheel factory.

"One of the earliest industries here was the making of furniture. My father, John Sloan, was the ploneer in that line. Sloan & Ingersoll, in 1853, had a factory in South Meridian street, east side, half a square south of Georgia street. "In 1851-52 there came a great temperance revival, in which Dr. W. C. Thomp son, Jonathan W. Gordon and other were leaders. It was a great season for store-box and sidewalk speeches. Excit-ing events were few in those days, and the most was made of one when it came along. The morals of liquor sellers were vorse than now. Any boy fifteen or sixteen years old could, if he had the money, buy whisky anywhere.

Strange Invoices. "The invoices that we received for the goods that we bought would be considered strange now. We bought glassware at Pittsburg; English chemicals and drugs at Philadelphia; French, German and other goods of continental Europe at New York; copal gum (we made varnishes), indigo, spices and other East India goods at Boston. The New York invoice would give its values in shillings, of which it took eight to make a dollar Boston invoices would be in shillings, six to the dollar, and Philadelphia bills in shillings, called 'levies,' valued at 121/2

Mr. Sloan attended the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy during the winter of 1856-7, but for financial reasons did not graduate. He thought his assistance at hat time would be more valuable to Mr. Browning than the immediate benefit of graduation. He thought he could return college, but the opportunity did not me again. He was elected president the American Pharmaceutical Association at the meeting held in this city in 1879. The degree of doctor of medicine was given him by the Medical Col-lege of Indiana in 1880, in which school he has lectured on pharmacy at most of the sessions since 1879. The degree of doctor of pharmacy was conferred on him by Purdue University in 1891. He has been a member of the convention to revise the pharmacopeia of the United States and also of the national formulary committee. He has been president of the Indianapolis Board of Trade, has been a member of the Indianapolis Board of School Commissioners since 1886, and is a thirty-third degree Scottish

REVENUE RECEIPTS.

Figures Given by Internal Revenue Commissioner Scott.

Wheeling, W. Va., October 16 .- Nathan E. Scott, commissioner of internal revenue and West Virginia's member of the national Republican committee, who spent Sunday in his home city while en route to Chicago to attend the peace jubilee, stated that the internal revenue receipts continue to meet the estimates, and the force in his bureau is kept as busy as ever. Saturday's daily report of receipts showed them to be $837,244.31, an increase over the same day last year of $280,504.97. The total for the month up to date was $11,041,532.69. The total receipts since June 30, the day following which date the law went into effect, were $83,651,556.62, an increase over the same period in 1897 of $32,029,667.04. This gives an idea of the magnitude of the work of the bureau. In speaking of the new stamp tax Mr. Scott says that the wealthy classes and the corporations pay a very large share of them, the New York Stock Exchange alone contributing about $18,000 a day. Little or no complaint is made by those who pay the heaviest per cent. of stamp taxes.
